Old Homes in Rockville On Tour Next Weekend
The Washington Post, Times Herald (1959-1973); Apr 8, 1967;
ProQuest Historical Newspapers: The Washington Post
pg. C1

Old Homes in Rockville On Tour Next Weekend

FIVE OLD Rockville houses will be open from 1 to 5 p.m. Sunday, April 16, on a tour sponsored by the Montgomery County Historical Society and the Rockville Arts Council.

The houses range in date from 1815 to 1890.

Tours begin at the Montgomery County Historical Society's Beall-Dawson house where tea will be served from 4 to 5 p.m. The house, built by Upton Beall, is notable for its Adams style interior. It is owned by the City of Rockville and leased by the Historical Society. The furniture, of the first half of the 19th century, includes an 1835 piano.

Other houses on the tour include:

The Anderson House, 39 W Montgomery ave., built in 1880, and now the home of Judge and Mrs. Thomas M. Anderson and furnished with family heirlooms.

The Smith House, 108 Forest ave., is owned by Lucy Smith and furnished in 1890 style. The movie "Lilith" was filmed in some of the 16 rooms.

The Casey House has been remodeled by Thomas G. Casey, the present owner. It was built in 1820, at 307 Great Falls rd.

The Terry House, 105 S. Van Buren st., was built in 1822, bought and remodeled by Dr. and Mrs. Luther B. Terry in 1953. Worthy of note are the tiled fireplaces and dining room ceiling.

Reproduced with permission of the copyright owner. Further reproduction prohibited without permission.